-  Panera Bread: Panera Bread has a program called "Dough-Nation," (clever, right?) where organizations can sell Panera gift cards at a discounted rate and keep a portion of the proceeds. Panera Bread also offers "Community Breadbox" events where a percentage of sales during a designated period goes to the organization. <http://fundraising.panerabread.com/>

3. Chipotle Mexican Grill: Chipotle has a fundraising program called "Chipotle Fundraisers," where organizations can host an event at their local Chipotle restaurant. Supporters of the organization can present a flyer or mention the fundraiser at checkout, and your organization gets a percentage of the sales back. <https://community.chipotle.com/>

4. Pizza Hut: Pizza Hut offers a fundraising program called "Book It! Program," specifically designed for schools. The program encourages students to read by rewarding them with free pizza certificates. Schools can use these certificates as incentives or rewards for various reading-related activities. <http://www.pizzahutgivesback.com/>

5. McDonald's: McDonald's has a fundraising program called "McTeacher's Night," where teachers and staff members from schools volunteer to work at McDonald's for an evening. A percentage of the sales generated during that time is returned to the school.
